People and Faces

When you boil it all down, the University of New Haven is all about its students. It's really a small community unto itself. When classes are over, on-campus and commuter students alike can enjoy the facilities offered in the student center such as the Charger Tavern, lounge, or cafeteria. If that isn't to your liking, you can get together with friends in your room. This section isn't about aspects of the University; it's about the people who attend it.

Right after the students returned from intersession this year, a warm front hit the Northeast. In its wake it left a week of record-breaking warm temperatures. During the week students took full advantage of the weather, and the sight of students playing frisby, hackey sack, and football was a common one.

War in the Gulf: Open Forum

Over one hundred students and faculty members attended a Day Student Government sponsored open forum on the war in the Persian Gulf.

All across the nation, the war in the Persian Gulf was on the minds of the people. No more so than on college and university campuses. The practice of the teach-in, which was started during the Vietnam era, came to life again in 1990. For two and a half hours teachers and students spoke, debated, and expressed their feelings about the war in an open forum sponsored by the Day Student Government.

Two fatalities lay covered at the scene, (Left). Participants in the program included police, fire, and rescue personnel from West Haven and New Haven. Preparing to pull out another "victim" from the wreck, (Below).

(Right) Rescue workers work on another "victim." (Above) Rescue and medical personnel attend to one of the victims.

AMBULANCE

Every year the University of New Haven sponsors an alcohol awareness week designed to educate the student body about the consequences of alcohol abuse. This year, a week of community awareness projects, non-alcoholic parties, and abstinence pledges culminated in a fake accident being performed on campus. Police, Fire, and Rescue personnel acted as if they were dealing with the real thing. From the bloodied victims taken from the cars, to the hearse taking the bodies from the scene; this was a brutal, graphic demonstration of what can result from the misuse of alcohol.

A Day in the Life...

The Cafeteria provides a nice, informal setting for students

WE DIG PHI SIG

It's not all just books and studying. A day in the life at UNH is filled with all sorts of extracurricular activity. Be it going to a movie in the tavern, a Day Student Government meeting, participating in a club, or just hanging out with your friends and roommates; there's always an excuse to put off the books (for a little while, at least).

THANK YOU NOTE

During my four years at the University of New Haven, in the rush of events, I may have sometimes overlooked the importance of the support and assistance I recieved on a regular basis that directly impacted my success.

One of the pleasures of life is the opportunity to reflect on the beauty of those whose friendship and goodwill we value highly. I have found that friendship is a valuable possession. And I have made many friends at UNH.

It is my pleasure to say "Thank you.", to the chairpersons of the Business Administration and Marketing Departments, the football athletic coaches, J. Jones, Sports Information Department, the Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity Inc., my brothers, football teammates, roommates, and to the former Admissions Counselor, Mrs. Lesa Loretz.

You have my sincere appreciation for your thoughtfulness, kind words of expression and support.

"If a man does not keep pace with his companions, perhaps it is because he hears a different drummer."

A young Charger squad showed flashes of brilliance in a season where heartbreaking losses came more often than wins. After jumping out to a quick 3-1 start early in the schedule, New Haven ran into some tough Northeast competition and finished the first semester with a 4-5 record. Over the new year, the Chargers traveled to sunny southern California, where it rained for an entire week. A close 5-point game with nationally ranked Cal. Poly Pomona was the highlight of the trip.

The N.E.C.C. regular season found New Haven again showing flashes of greatness, but the team often struggled when it came to putting points on the scoreboard and a "W" in the win column. With only one woman graduating, the Charger women look forward to the 91-92 season with hopes of greater success.

CHARGERS

The float competition was fierce this year. The first prize went to the Fire Science Club for their tree float, (complete with owl which they burned near the field). Second place went to the Delta Chi Fraternity with their flatbed truck "graveyard for the owls" float (which was so big they couldn't drive it to the field). Third place went to the Phi Sigma Sorority with their sculpture of an owl being split in half by the U.N.H. Charger.

The Chargers won a stunning 64-45 victory over Southern Connecticut State University. As always, the tailgate parties were a big attraction. (Above) The sisters of the Chi Kappa Rho Sorority. Career Fair

Many national companies and corporations participated in this year's job fair. The purpose of these fairs is to recruit graduating seniors into certain companies. The students get a chance to seek employment after graduation, and the companies are ensured a fresh, vital work force.

Editor's Note

This book is the culmination of a lot of work done in a short amount of time by an inexperienced staff. Nevertheless, I am proud of the product. I would like to thank my devoted staff who slaved over this book night and day to ensure that the book came out on time. I would also like to thank my father, whose love and financial support sustained me throughout four years of intellectual endeavors and mental stress. I love you Dad. My stepmom who provided invaluable love and assistance through my times of desperation. My Mom, and my brother who provided sympathy and friendly advice. The brothers of the Delta Chi Fraternity who have become my second family. Bob Sasena for holding this whole thing together. And finally, all the friends I have accumulated over a very brief four years at UNH. Goodbye and God bless.

Following the termination of two counselors from the Office of Admissions, a student rally, led by members of the Black Student Union, was held in the Student Center Cafeteria. Various speakers talked in front of the crowd of about two hundred people for about two hours. Afterwards, many of those attending walked out in front of Maxcy Hall and held a peaceful protest which lasted for another half hour.

Dan LaRosa, one of the most popular performing hypnotists in the country, made two appearances at UNH this year, the first time during the fall semester, the second time in the spring. At both shows, roughly two hundred and fifty students were in attendance.

Dan LaRosa's show involved putting a select group of volunteers under hypnosis. Through suggestion, he put them in various mental situations, often leading to very funny reactions. With a word, or a wave of his hand, Dan could awaken, put to sleep, or freeze in mid motion any of his subjects.
